McCRAY SENTENCED TO 10 YEARS AT ATLANTA; INELIGIBLE FOR PAROLE

Former Governor of Indiana Must Also Pay Fine of $10,000.

ANOTHER CHARGE PENDS

As Long as This Stands Federal Prisoner Cannot Under the Law be Admitted to Parole; Otherwise Term Would be Cut by Two-Thirds.

By United Press.
INDIANAPOLIS, April 30.—Warren T. McCray, whose resignation as governor of Indiana became effective at 10 A. M. today, was sentenced to 10 years in federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., by Federal Judge Anderson following his conviction for use of the mails to defraud.

McCray was also ordered to pay a fine of $10,000.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the mantle of governorship fell from McCray's shoulders by virtue of his resignation signed Tuesday afternoon at the state house.

At the same moment the prisoner arose from his seat in the courtroom to take his seat.

Judge Anderson reviewed the case, which he said was one of the most extraordinary in the history of federal jurisprudence.

Slightly haggard, McCray appeared to have regained his composure which had characterized him throughout his trial, as he faced the judge for the last act of his dramatic federal court trial.

After sentence the prisoner was turned over to U. S. Marshal Moretti, his guard since Monday night, when the jury returned an indictment charging him with using the mails to defraud $1,000,000 worth of forged and fraudulent notes to Indiana banks.

Immediately preparations for the trip to Atlanta were begun.

A federal prisoner is eligible for parole when one-third of his sentence has been served. Under a recent ruling of the U. S. Supreme Court a prisoner against whom another federal indictment is pending is not eligible for parole. There is an indictment now pending against McCray, charging him with violation of the national banking laws.

McCray's conviction and sentence grew out of his financial failure nearly eight months ago.

HARDING WORLD COURT PROPOSAL RESURRECTED

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—After slumbering for a year the Harding World Court proposal was taken up today by a special Senate committee. The special sub-committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Senator George Wharton Pepper, anti-slavery Republican, was called together for its first meeting.

A resolution suggested that President Coolidge call a world conference not to further limit world armament but to work out some means of international adjudication, either through the present World Court or some substitute.

The Harding proposal for American participation in the World Court is considered doomed by Democrats who charge that Republicans are attempting to hand out the Pupper resolution as an "ineffective substitute."

Proposers of American participation were out in force. Two days will be given to them and then a week's adjournment will be taken to permit opponents to submit their views.

Under the terms offered by Mr. Whiteley half the issue is to be taken at once, the remainder at a week's time. The city will save interest by this arrangement.

NO SUNDAY GOLF TILL COURT PASSES ON BROWN'S ORDER

Official Statement Issued by Uniontown Club; No Sunday Golf Official Here.

WILL LIVE UP TO LAW

There will be no Sunday golf on the links of the Pleasant Valley and Uniontown Country clubs until there is a court decision reversing the recent ruling of District Attorney E. D. Brown on Sunday sports. This was indicated today in an official statement by the president of the Uniontown club and expressions by officials of the Pleasant Valley club, though not in the form of a statement.

President J. B. Adams of the Uniontown club issued the following statement:

"The members of the Uniontown Country Club are law-abiding citizens and no attempt will be made to play golf on Sunday until a decision is rendered by a higher authority on the recent ruling of District Attorney E. D. Brown as to Sunday golf."

There has been no meeting of the board of governors of the Pleasant Valley club. President J. Fred Kurts is in the South. Other officials, however, said there was no doubt that the same attitude would be adopted by the Connellsville-Scottdale club.

In fact this stand had already been taken, a notice having been posted last Sunday that golf would not be permitted.

At the same time it was indicated there will be no effort by the Pleasant Valley club to test the action of the district attorney.

I have used it. My hair is the marvel of millions. It grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. And now, at a grandmother's age, it is hair that most girls envy.

I have supplied this help to countless friends, and I brought them like results. So I am convinced that it is hair that can grow no longer to come without it. And I am going to help those millions get it.

What experts say.

This formula is reported by French experts to be based on millions of hair study. They gave me no these reasons for its amazing results.

It combats the hardened oil and dandruff which suffocates the hair roots. They check the hair growth and destroy the hair. They choke the pigment which gives color to the hair.

Thus it cleans the scalp, then it stimulates and fertilizes hair under these conditions, just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

It cannot harm hair color, natural or artificial. It deals only with the scalp, the soil of the hair. And all the re-

WEDNESDAY EVENING, APR. 30, 1924.

FOR OUR OWN AND THE BOYS' HOME.

When occasions arise for cooperation between the people of Connellsville and Uniontown, and other sections of the county, the complaint is frequently heard that our own citizens fall lamentably to measure up to their opportunities and neighborly obligations.

There has been altogether too pronounced, and a long prolonged, feeling of rivalry between the two towns. The contention and perpetuation have been beneficial to no one, but have retarded the growth of several movements which are country-wide in their scope and which should have the very hearty support of all sections.

It is fortunate, however, that avilities are not now lacking of a disposition to get together, at least on some matters. For instance, the ventures in progress with a view to resuscitating athletic relations between Connellsville and Uniontown, high schools give promise that the time is approaching when there can be a mutual forgetfulness of annoyments that would be in every way desirable, as well as helpful both here and in Uniontown.

Tomorrow night presents an opportunity whereby the people of Connellsville, particularly the fathers of boys, and others who are interested in the larger development of Scouting, can show their good faith and good citizenship, as well as their interest in a most worthy undertaking.

Going to Uniontown and taking part in the meeting at which it is planned to form a county Scout council or committee.

When formed this body will function for the entire county, each Scout center having representation on it, and each community having available all the benefits and advantages of an expert Scout leader that Uniontown, Connellsville or other larger towns will have.

Under the circumstances it would be little short of discreditable to Connellsville if there is not a large attendance of representatives, mostly from this section, at the meeting to be held, by the men and character of that delegation, to show to Uniontown, Connellsville and other towns that will take part that Connellsville is alive to the possibilities of a systematic administration of Scouting in the county, and ready and willing to go along with a proposition which has so much of prestige in behalf of the boys whose training during their formative years will so largely determine the kind of leaders the different sections of the county will have for years hence.

For the sake of our own name, no less than for the sake of the boys, do your part in making Connellsville's showing on this occasion all that it ought to be.

MINE EXPLOSIONS AND COAL DUST.

When the official and export examination into the mine disaster at Newwood, W. Va., was made, it will doubtless be known as in the case of other recent like disasters in Utah and elsewhere, that the primary cause was a local explosion of gas. The same thus produced was, in all probability, propagated by coal dust, and with increasing violence over so large an area of the mine that the miners were either killed by the force of the accentuated explosion, or smothered to death by the resulting carbon monoxide.

Such a conclusion has been so frequently reached by mining experts who have made inquiries into the cause of mine explosions, and the theory has been repeatedly proven by the demonstrations of the United States Bureau of Mines in its experimental mine at Bruceton, Pa., that it is being more generally accepted as correct.

Officials of the Bureau of Mines have become so thoroughly satisfied that they have determined the real cause of major mine disasters, and are so definitely convinced that the effects of a local explosion can be minimized and its spread prevented by the use of rock dust, that they have become more and more in their recommendations that this preventative be applied in all mines producing coal dust, which experiments have shown to be easily feasible.

There has, however, been a reluctance on the part of many mine managers to act upon the suggestion of the Bureau of Mines. Not because they have neglected taking precautions to prevent explosions, but largely because of the reluctance of those who have played the other method. The custom of some miners, including those with oilers or other liquid solutions, is to generally follow in the method on part of the Bureau of Mines, that is, to be effective only so long as the moisture is retained, and at best, this is for a comparatively short time. Again, it has been found that some of the finer coal dust will even float on the top of water without absorbing moisture and thus, under

CARUSO WIDOW AND NEW MATE PARTED.

MISS LYNNE H. KINGELLA AND GLORIA CARUSO.

Friends in New York have confirmed the separation of Mrs. H. A. Ingram, widow of the late Enrico Caruso, from her husband, Captain E. A. Ingram, our distinguished tenor. Captain Ingram is said to have withdrawn the "bruteness" of his wife's friends whom he met at Palm Beach as their honeymoon and to have denounced Americans in general. His wife suggested that if he did not like her friends, he could return to England. He did. Little Gloria Caruso is said to be very fond of her stepfather.

Radicalism and Immigration Twin Sources of Danger

Baltimore Manufacturers Record

The assumption by foreign countries, whether by themselves or Italy or Japan, of the right to dictate to America the terms upon which we admit emigration from their countries to this is an insult to the people of the United States and a reflection upon our intelligence and judgment.

We have learned by sad experience that this country has been made the dumping ground for millions of people without whose presence this nation would be very much better off. We have race problems enough at present without an increased race problem by means of Orientals.

The refusal to permit them to settle in our country is not an insult to Japan or to China or to other Asian regions but merely a decision on our part that immigrants from those countries are not desired, that they cannot assimilate with American citizenship and that, therefore, we propose in self-defense for the future of America to restrict all immigration.

That Italy or Roumania or other countries should presume to criticize our immigration laws is a source of humiliation which should meet with a prompt and effective reply from the people of this country. Individual Roumanians and Italians have here and there proven themselves good citizens, worthy Americans, but it is impossible for us to work to break down this government in the interest of the polyglot influences which are at work in Europe.

In the light of the present situation the National Association of Manufacturers and the other great employers of labor, which have heretofore favored foreign immigration, should reverse their position and take a decided stand in favor of the ultimate limit that can be placed on immigration, entirely without regard to whether it suits other national or not or whether it temporarily harasses us with all their ruinous activities are at work to break down this government in the interest of the polyglot influences which are at work in Europe.

That Italy or Roumania or other countries should presume to criticize our immigration laws is a source of humiliation which should meet with a prompt and effective reply from the people of this country. Individual Roumanians and Italians have here and there proven themselves good citizens, worthy Americans, but it is impossible for us to work to break down this government in the interest of the polyglot influences which are at work in Europe.

Let us half or certainly seriously lessen all immigration until we solve this problem, and then bring it about by the heavy immigration of the past and the character of the world's dumping ground, even for good men and women, except that entirely within our control and that entirely within our power to do so. Let us work to break down confidence in our rulers as one of the first steps toward the overturning of the American government. Let no one imagine that this last sentence is without foundation in fact. It is the truth and a very serious menace to our country. Much of the agitation in Washington doubtless comes from the different sections of the country who differ in their views of what our legislation should show in the necessity of standing gallantly against the criticisms of which foreign nations dare to suggest.

We have too long permitted ourselves to be influenced by the desires of other nations. They have looked upon us as an easy mark, financially and in other ways. They have presumed to undertake to tell us what our immigration laws should be our immigration laws, and what our responsibility toward advancing the world, and bid the world to take me while I'm writing. C. L. LUTTON MOVES UP IN SERVICE OF FRICK COKE COMPANY

C. L. Lutton, superintendent at Luton, No. 3 plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, obtained his boss and employees at his home Monday evening with a four course 7 o'clock dinner, covers being laid for 30 guests who were seated at three large tables, each table having a floral centerpiece with favors and place cards, all carried out in a color scheme of pink and white.

The rooms were decorated with ferns and peach blossoms. Mr. Lutton has been superintendent at Luton No. 3, about six years and has been promoted to a position with the H. C. Frick Coke Company where he will devote all his time to the prevention of accidents.

While speaking to the men after the dinner, Mr. Lutton gave to his men all the credit for their high production at low cost and asked them to continue to produce as before with a higher aim for his successor, Mr. Morwin, who comes from the Footdale plant which has been temporarily closed. Mr. Lutton reminded them he was only leaving them as a supervisor and would still be working with them in his new work and would continue to live at Luton.

John Hartling responded with fitting remarks and many compliments telling how sorry the men were to see Mr. Lutton go but glad too to see him going on as one with his ability should. Mr. Hartling in behalf of the employees presented Mr. Lutton with a solid white gold watch, chain and Macole charm and terminated his remarks by reading the following poem composed and written by Mr. Thomas Slocz.

To Our "Super."

A little token to our "Boss"
A real "Co-worker"
We're positive we'll never have Another one better.
We shall surely miss
His smiling face.
Gee, but we hate to see him
Leave the old place.
We sincerely hope
In his daily work
He will not forget the boss
He has left behind
If his new job requires
Anything but pluck
We all wish him
"57" varieties" of luck.

Mr. Lutton was presented with an armful of cut flowers with compliments and thanks for the very fine dinner she served them.

VANDERBILT, April 30—Youth will be served. The Paul Tornadoes added another score to their bill last evening when they defeated the Paul All-Stars, known as the "Married Imperial Nine" on the Dickerson Run, Y. M. C. A. grounds. The game was well played throughout, but six hits being made, four by the victors, while the losers managed to get two. Anderson was the verdict over Bowman, with 11 strikeouts to his credit. The latter whiffed eight. Each lesson three passes.

In the first inning the Tornadoes sent three over the pan, after the All-Stars had gathered one. Smith went to bat on a bases, and when out, on a line, was followed by P. Washington singled. Smith advancing to third, J. Washington was safe on A. West's error, and the bases were full. Anderson singled and two crossed the plate. Morwatt smote a double and another went across. Arnett and C. Anderson breezed. The All-Stars came back with another tally in the second, which ended the scoring for the losers. The Tornadoes annexed tallies in the fourth and sixth innings.

By winning last evening's clash, the Tornadoes are their winning streak to sixteen straight games, this being the second won this season. They are scheduled to meet the Fort Hill Tigers at Fort Hill this evening.

Why suffer from Rheumatism?

There is a certain interplayable feeling that goes with halo and hurdy old age—it is a feeling of happiness, of care unknown, of return youth.

But rheumatism—that deadly malady which has caused so many to survive to the end of life, and to force—caused so many to forego the pleasures of life—caused so many to be dependent. Why suffer from it?

To be helped—abuse—cutches, canes and willing hands always needed to assist the lame and the weak. Rheumatism will vanish the same as sin disorder—the same as hollow complexion—the same as that rundown condition when S. S. is used.

The Paramount

"THE HERO"—Which the Paramount Theatre is presenting as the feature today and tomorrow, is in line with the announcement made some time ago by Preferred Pictures that they intended filming in special productions, melodramatic plays which have proved most popular in the seasons of the New York stage.

The Hero probably received more universal praise than any other production on Broadway last season. It is the work of Gilbert history, playwright, actor and novelist, and was recently singled out by Burns Mantle, dramatic critic of the Chicago Tribune and the New York News, for inclusion in his year book of the stage, "The Best Plays of 1923-24."

The direction of the piece is credited to Gaston who it will be remembered transferred to a film version Otto Skinner's "Kingsley." A distinguished cast marks it, headed by Gaston Glass, Barbara La Marr, John Sainpolis and Frank Lloyd.

It was recently announced that Preferred Pictures had acquired the dramatic rights to another Broadway production of a different nature but equally as popular as "The Hero," its acquisition of "The Broken Wing," and its particular interest to those who favor a comedy with an element of the spectacular as well. While it is understood that this story is to be filmed in the near future no definite plans concerning the cast have yet been announced.

The Soisson

"MERRY GO ROUND"—Is now playing at the Soisson Theatre. Reversing the usual order of things, a prominent tutor who witnessed a pre-showing of Universal's latest production "Merry Go Round," at once made application for the book rights to this unusual screen play and negotiations are now in progress to this end.

The usual procedure is to picture popular books, but in this case the opposite will be done, the author's name not as yet ready to be given out, as the negotiations are not quite complete. But there is no doubt but that they will be quickly consummated.

This author is one of America's foremost writers and those in a position to prognosticate insist that in "Merry Go Round" is placed on the book market. It will prove to be one of the biggest sellers ever written. This author's publishers have already seen the screen production and are most enthusiastic over it to the extent that they, too, are eager to see the present negotiations completed.

So unusual is this reversal of the usual that all book world is interested in the outcome, which will prove whether screen stories made into books are as successful as books into screen stories.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Johnny Hines will be seen in "Conductor 1492."

The Orpheum

"THE NEXT CORNER"—France, Spain, and the Argentine—what more could you want as romantic background for one of the most love dramas seen in these parts in many months?

"The Next Corner," which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre, is a Sam Wood production for Paramount. You remember "His Children's Children," also directed by Mr. Wood? Well, "The Next Corner" has its beat seven different ways. Take that coat for instance—Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney, Dorothy Mackail, Ricardo Cortez and Louise Dresser are featured in the support, and it is great.

Kate Jordan wrote the story—a writer as a novel and recently seen as a successful play. It's all about a young wife, who, with her husband away on business in South America, gets mixed up with a gay crowd of French frolickers—introduced to a fascinating Spanish nobleman, goes to his mountain home in the Pyrenees, forgetting herself and duty to her husband. The young grandee is shot by a peasant whose daughter he had wronged. The girl (Dorothy Mackail playing Blanche Neary) becomes conscious of her sin and returns to her husband, confessing all and is forgiven.

The smashing climax is great stuff.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Wild Bill Hickok with William Shatford in the principal role, will be in the principal role, will be in the

The State

An attraction of merit and of more than ordinary importance is "Kemp," with America's foremost comedian heading the original New York cast will be the offering at the State Theatre, Uniontown tonight, for one night only. This wonderful laugh comedy was written by L. C. and Elliott Nugent.

The story told in three acts revolves around the Bence family who live in a little town in New Jersey about 60 miles from New York City. Katherine, the oldest daughter, has tied her hand at everything. She thinks that she can sing, that she can paint and write a book. She succeeds in none of these efforts and returns to New York with a thousand dollars worth of dresses because she has been promised a star part in a musical comedy.

The story contains a lot of extremely clever dialogue and by quotations

THURS., MAY 1

The material is black satin and the dress has a scarf trimming in pink crepe. The scarf is part of the dress in the front, being set on as a yoke at the back and knotted as fancy dictates. At the right a beige dinner dress of georgette follows the mode in this rather elaborate design. Trimming consists solely in the puffed collar and the whole in set sections of lace dyed in the exact shade.

Simple Line Now in Lead in Paris

Afternoon Dinner Gowns With Short Capes Are Being Shown.

A Parisian well versed in the art of dress said recently that one saw as simple and as smartly dressed women in New York as one would see in Paris. This may have been a subtle bit of flattery, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald, but in truth there is so much of interest in the costumes of the women in New York one may study them unceasingly without having finished the inexhaustible subject.

Lending additional point to the remark of the Parisian is the protest from the other side that manufacturers on this side have exploited the very thing that the makers abroad have desired to feature. Before the last toilette frocks from Paris had even had a chance to see the daylight of New York some of the shops were showing some very creditable productions in this period.

Both sides of the water the claim of credit of the tailor-made suit is put forth. Most authorities give the Americans the credit for its appearance in its present form, but it must be remembered that as long as three seasons ago the French designers began sending us an occasional suit which they called classic, from its perfectly plain long line. This suit had a slightly curved line at the sides.

To the average woman, however, the source of the clothes she wears is of trifling import compared with the effect and the chances of the survival of this or that mode for which she has a predilection or a prejudice.

Few Extreme Modes. At the present time the American woman is keeping her reputation for clinging to a manner of dress like a uniform. She adopts this form of dress because a costume quiet and not too extreme is in better taste in public places and in large cities. Perhaps this is the reason that the couturiers in Paris are very apt to have a second showing of gowns for their own Paris clientele after the openings for the American buyers are over. After they have shown them the extreme things—things which are frequently modified and changed later for the American woman—they settle down to picking and adapting for the French woman, so the thing is about equal.

Few of the costumes seen at this time show anything startling in an extreme way, but the subtle changes that make for the correctness of dress are apparent. An extremely close small hat is worn by the younger set and the woman who can carry off the extreme lines, but there are also hats which have more line to the line as well as more trimming to soften the lines. The colors continue to be more or less conservative, too. Hats from Paris have not borne out the assertion that smallness was the desired note, although that is not to say that the extreme small hat will not be pushed by the milliner or demanded by the American woman.

Difference in Sleeves.

It is amusing to note that the length and breadth of sleeve variety with almost every make, and on what other point they may agree, the details of the sleeves seem to differ. The short sleeve is shown in the afternoon gowns by Paquin, on which they are long they are also long. Other makers like the short sleeve and introduce it on every occasion. A few of the frocks have the full gathered sleeve and the more elaborate dinner or afternoon dress is usually sleeveless. The very wide and open sleeve has not been seen on a very formal dress and then is of lace or chiffon.

Coal Company Employees Lose Right to Live in Company House When They Strike

Says a Decision of West Virginia State Court of Appeals.

ARE EMPLOYEE - TENANTS

Dependent Upon the Will of Both Parties, Hence When They Cease To Work Their Right to Occupy Company Property Ceased Also.

The recent decision of the West Virginia State Court of Appeals, involving the rights and powers of a coal company to dispossess the occupants of tenement houses who refuse to work for the company, is of such far-reaching importance that it is attracting much attention.

The decision was handed down on an appeal of the Black Band Consolidated Coal Company, operating at Mingo at Ogleet, Kanawha County, from a verdict in the lower court awarding $300 damages to a miner who was evicted from his company house after having gone out on strike and refusing to work for the company. The plaintiff in this action made no attempt to prove damages for the eviction, but only for injury to the household goods removed. He had been evicted by the company for about six years and had lived in the house from which he was ejected about three years.

The company deducted from his wages as they were earned $2.00 every two weeks, also 50 cents for electric current for lighting the house. The houses were not rented at a profit. The cost of repairs and insurance exceeding the deductions from the wages of those who occupied them. The company permitted only employees to occupy these houses, but employees were not compelled to live in the houses to secure employment in its mines, other houses being available for that purpose in the vicinity.

After a review of the case the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment, set aside the verdict of the lower court and granted a new trial. The court set forth the following as reasons for its decision:

"1. An estate at will in lands is that which a tenant has by an entry made thereon under a tenure to hold during the joint wills of the parties.

"2. A coal mining company owns a number of dwelling houses for the use of those employed in and about its mines, the same a part of its plant and are necessary to the successful conduct of its business. They are rented to its miners at a nominal charge, hardly sufficient to cover rent and insurance. The rent or charge is calculated at so much per month, but it is paid every two weeks by deductions from the miners' wages as they are earned. Miners are not required to live in the houses and those who do not are paid the same wages as those who do, all being paid at such a much per ton. The houses are not kept for rent generally, but are occupied only by the company's employees, and then only by their consent. Under these conditions a miner is employed, if furnished a house, he moves in, continues his employment for a number of years, and the deductions for rent are regularly made from his wages every two weeks. He then voluntary quits work and pays no rent thereafter. This being an agreement that he should occupy the house for any definite period, when he ceases to work for the company his right to occupy the house ceases.

"3. The miner was an employee in respect to his mining coal, but a tenant as respects his occupancy of the house, the two relations of employer and employee and landlord and tenant not being necessarily incompatible with each other.

"4. The contract being terminable at the will of either party, the miner had only an estate at will in the house and occupied it as a tenant at will.

"5. Where he was held over for a period of six months or more after he quit work, it may be inferred that this held out some hope with the landlord, thus creating a new tenancy at will; and upon returning to work and remove his goods from the premises after notice to do so, he thereafter became a trespasser

Birds Sing Again in Ancient Pompeii Garden

In the last days of Pompeii a pictureque garden with marble mountain and cresson niches was one of the adornments of the city.

One entered through a carriage pavilion, the high entrance surrounded by a bell. Across the threshold a court in white and gold between two rows of pillars led to the spacious, sloping terraces, watered by a drowsy brook. The twitter of a thousand birds completed the pastoral landscape.

Excavators have resurrected this garden. The lawns are green again, as they were when Vesuvius erupted, A. D. 79. A silvery bell again peals to visitors; the murmuring brook wanders in through new conduits, and songsters, descendants of the birds who were singing about Pompeii more than 1,800 years ago, sing as their forebears did in the days made famous by Bulwer Lytton.

Lice-Killing Powder Is Big Help to Turkey Hen

Always be sure that the turkey hen which is sitting on eggs has her plumage filled full of lice-killing powder twice or three times during the hatching the last time not less than three days before the hatch is due. If the hen is too wild to approach, perhaps one dusting will do given two or three days before the hatch is expected. If the work is done at night the hen is less likely to be frightened and break the eggs.

Memorabilia of Famous Novelist Given Museum

All the memorabilia of George Sand, which were inherited by the granddaughter of the great novelist, Aurora Sand, have been bequeathed to the Carnavalet museum.

Letters, manuscripts of novels and numerous articles of extrinsic worth are now on view in a part of the building called the "Musee George Sand," and the many admirers of George Sand, most of whom apparently haven't read her voluminous romances, are tripping out to the Carnavalet.

However, the article most characteristic of the author of "La Petite Juliette" a big black cigar, isn't in the collection, much to the disappointment of the visitors and also of the museum attendants, who are constantly being asked, "Whereabouts is the cigar?"

Aurore Sand has come into the public eye not only because of her gift to the Carnavalet but also because she has just written a novel, "Carnaval." The first book to appear under her own name, it has been received with considerable approval.
